To better support you, here's some information and a few key reminders to help you along the way.

About T-Mobile Billing

What does my first bill include?

- You'll see 30 full days of plans and equipment charges, meaning you are billed for about 10 days of service in advance

View and pay your bill

- Go to t-mo.co/payment

Save $ with AutoPay (up to 8 lines)

- Sign up at t-mo.co/AutoPaySetup

Reasons your first few bill amounts may fluctuate:

- Your equipment order has not yet shipped
- Equipment charges and promotional credits may not apply until the next bill
- If you made plan/service changes in the middle of a billing period, you will likely see prorated charges and credits on your next bill

Device trade-ins

- Your trade-in credit could be applied at time of purchase, as a one-time credit on your bill or as monthly bill credits. Some promotion values could be split between a one-time trade-in credit and monthly recurring credits.
- Sending us your trade-in device? The fastest way to return it is at a T-Mobile store, or send it back within 30 days after receiving your new equipment.

Trade-in credits will not appear on the bill until device is received by T-Mobile. Trade-in credits will be displayed as "Device Trade-in Credit" on the bill.
